

COMBATING THE EFFECTS OF THE INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL CRISIS – A PRIORITY IN THE ACTIVITY OF NATIONAL, EUROPEAN AND INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTIONS

Rezumat: Acest studiu este o analiză cuprinzătoare a rolului instituțiilor naționale, europene și internaționale în efortul lor de a combate efectele crizei financiare globale. Accentul se pune pe contribuția Uniunii Europene în inițierea de măsuri la nivel regional și global pentru a limita efectele crizei. Studiul prezintă cauzele crizei și evidențiază obligațiile factorilor decizionali în adoptarea măsurilor necesare pentru a preveni acest tip de fenomen în viitor.

Unele dintre capitole sunt dedicate Summitului celor 20 de state membre (grupul G20,) care a avut loc în Washington în 15 noiembrie 2008. S-a făcut o analiză amănunțită și asupra lucrărilor Summitului European ce a avut loc la Bruxelles pe 11-12 decembrie 2008. Nivelul atins de măsurile adoptate va fi analizat ulterior, în timpul următoarei adunări G20, programată pentru 30 aprilie 2009, la 101 zile după învestirea lui Barack Obama ca șef al administrației americane.

Abstract: This study is an extensive analysis of the role of national, European and international institutions, in their efforts to combat the effects of the global financial crisis. The emphasis is laid on the European Union's contribution in initiating measures at regional and global level for limiting the effects of this crisis. The study presents the causes of this crisis highlighting the obligation of the decision factors in adopting the necessary measures to prevent this kind of phenomena in the future.

Some of the chapters are dedicated to the Summit of the 20 member states (the G20 group) that took place in Washington on November 15, 2008. A thorough analysis is also made on the works of the Summit of European Union that took place in Brussels, December 11-12, 2008. The level achieved by the measures adopted will be subsequently analyzed during the next G20 Assembly, planned for the 30 April 2009, 101 days after Barak Obama's investiture at the head of the American Administration.

If in the second half of 2007 and the first ten months of 2008, the financial crisis has been felt more in some countries, especially in the United States, since October 2008, the financial crisis has become global in nature.

The efforts to combat the crisis have involved national, European and universal institutions, and an analysis of the role of these institutions is of uttermost necessity.

In November 2008 José Manuel Durão Barroso, President of the European Commission draws the attention that exceptional times require exceptional measures, because the employment and welfare of our citizens are at stake<sup>1</sup>, and Nicolas Sarkozy, President of France who was also the President of the European Union at that time, stated that we cannot continue to lead the economy of the XXIst century with the instruments of the economy of the XXth<sup>2</sup>.

President Sarkozy emphasised that the EU has an important role to play in the efforts of combating the global financial crisis.

We are confident - he pointed out - that working together we will overcome the current challenges and we will restore the stability and prosperity of our economies<sup>3</sup>.

Outstanding personalities, knowledgeable researchers have carried out analysis relating to the ways and methods to combat the current crisis<sup>4</sup>.

Triggering global financial crisis is the subject of diplomatic negotiations at the regional level but also globally and the most appropriate measures to limit its negative effects, but – especially – the causes that triggered it are being searched for. It is obvious that the most sustained diplomatic activity in combating the consequences of the global financial crisis is held by the European Union, on the one hand, and some groups of states sharing common interests, but also having the capacity to impose a certain way in the financial relations at national, regional and global, on the other hand. It was found that – of those groups of countries – G20, established in 1999, took the initiative of diplomatic negotiations dedicated to urgent and effective strategies.

However, G20 has been preceded by consultations and negotiations at the European level.

§ 1. Contribution of the French Presidency of the EU – recognized and appreciated

Given that crisis – manifested in various forms (especially as a mortgage in the United States) over the past year and a half – came out after the Lehman Brothers bank crash, with “almost unimaginable consequences”<sup>1</sup>, the French Presidency European Union took the initiative of negotiating and adopting “urgent measures to stop the consequences of the crisis at the European level and worldwide”.

The personality who has shown “clairvoyance and realism” in these “troubled times” was the French President, Nicolas Sarkozy, who was also President of the European Union. His message – not only to the Member States, but also for other States as well, was firm and consistent: “I want that on this matter (the financial crisis – note ns.), We, Europeans, to be entirely united.”<sup>2</sup>

Sarkozy said that “this crisis marks the beginning of the «genuine XXIst century»”<sup>3</sup>.

First, the French Presidency organized consultations with some countries, including Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Spain and with the President of the European Commission José Manuel Durão Barroso, then, on Friday, November 7, 2008, convened the leaders of the 27 member states with a view to set up a concert program of measures, assumed by the European Union, and then promoted worldwide.<sup>4</sup>

Among the measures negotiated by the EU French Presidency, the most important ones focus on:

- a. the involvement of national institutions;
- b. the involvement of European institutions,
- c. the universal involvement of institutions in combating the effects of global financial crisis.

Although the views of European leaders regarding the means to combat the crisis were different a consensus on the imperative necessity that these means should be applied both at national and European level and worldwide came into shape.<sup>5</sup> Nicolas Sarkozy negotiated with Angela Merkel, German Chancellor, with Gordon Brown, Prime Minister of Great Britain, and discussed the measures with the President of the European Commission, José Manuel Durão Barroso.

The French President considered as “urgent and necessary” to organize an international summit to discuss “practical ways” to combat the global financial crisis.

On November 15, 2008 the works of the “Group 20”, were held in Washington, where several immediate measures to limit these effects and to eliminate the causes of the crisis were outlined.

§ 2. G20 – a group composed of industrialized and emerging countries

Established as a “consultative Forum on international financial issues between the largest and most influential economies in the world”, “Group 20” was founded in 1999 and included South Africa, Saudi Arabia, Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Canada, China, South Korea, France, Germany, India, Indonesia, Italy, Japan, Britain, Mexico, Russian Federation, United States, Turkey and the European Union – entitled to express their point of view, by its President in exercise based on the principle of rotation.

“Group 20” comprises two thirds of the world’s population, represents 85% -90% of Global Gross Domestic Product and provides 80 percent of world trade.

Before the triggering of the global financial crisis, “Group 20” held a meeting at the level of ministers of finance or heads of the (Governing) central banks.

The Summit in Washington on November 15, 2008, was organized for the first time at the level of the heads of the G20 member states.

The explanation of the call at this level lies in the exceptional importance of the issues addressed.

§ 3. Solutions Proposed at G20 Summit in Washington

For the preparation of the Summit in Washington on the days of 8-9 of November 2008, in Sao Paulo – Brazil’s “financial capital” – a meeting of the finance ministers and the heads of the G20 central banks was held.

They suggested the adoption of measures on the issue of charged fees: to increase of the role of national institutions to combat financial crisis; to reform the international financial system, through “Bretton Woods II.”

Major and emerging economies, especially Brazil, Russia, India and China, came to the Summit prepared to obtain “participation” in international decision-making system “according to their position in the global economy”.

It is known that – in recent years – China has been involved in African economies, developing a new type of cooperation with African countries, based not only on the exploitation of their resources but also «on an effective support for the economic development of these states»; Brazil has involved more in the economy of South American countries and India and has expanded its economic relations with the Russian Federation.

The European Union has brought to the Summit in Washington “a strong message of profound reform of the international financial system” by taking measures to oversee it.

Russian Federation has expressed public support for the European Union position on reforming the international financial system – through the statement of her President, Dmitri Medvedev.<sup>1</sup>

§ 4. Confrontation and Cooperation at the Summit in Washington

On November 15, 2008 – in Washington – several points of view were confronted, especially between the European Agenda, supported by Nicolas Sarkozy and the American Agenda, supported by President George W. Bush.

If the European Union called for an effective involvement of national institutions, European and universal “in combating and preventing the global financial crisis”, President Bush stated that “the United States does not want a too severe framing of their financial industry, whose contribution to Gross Domestic Product of U.S. is 10 percent”<sup>2</sup>.

U.S. President refused the idea that the United States to bear the entire responsibility for the international financial crisis, but it was agreed for the G20 leaders “to lay the ground for reforms to prevent repetition of such crises in future”.<sup>3</sup>

President Bush claimed that “this crisis is not a failure of the free market economy, and the answer is not to reinvent the system”<sup>4</sup>.

However, the European Union, the Russian Federation, Brazil and China have decided to “change the architecture of international finance” through “effective measures of regulation and supervision”.

After a preparatory meeting of the finance ministers and heads of G20 central banks – which took place in Sao Paulo, between November 8-9, 2008 – and after high level negotiations in Washington on November 15, 2008, some very important decisions have been adopted:

- a. effective support for economic through re-launching policies;

b. adoption of international standards to give an appropriate regulation of the financial system;

c. performing a reform of international institutions such as to prevent similar crises in the future.

The negotiations during the Summit have highlighted that “negotiations of the details is difficult” and that “they should be continued until the next meeting to be held on 30 April 2009”, when they reach 101 days in the U.S. Administration by Barrack Obama.

Concern to find appropriate solutions to combat global financial crisis concerns not only national and regional institutions but also the existing universal ones.

§ 5. National institutions – an important role in combating the financial crisis.

Beyond the divergent points of view – which did not miss during the G20 Summit in Washington, held on November 15, 2008 – a consensus on the involvement of national institutions, regional and universal in the complex process of combating the effects of financial crisis world came into shape.

Consensus on this option was outlined just before the Summit, by the measures adopted by the United States and the positions agreed – through negotiations – by the EU leaders, at the request of the President in exercise of the Union, Nicolas Sarkozy.

It is known that – after the first negative vote of the House of Representatives for the “Paulson Plan” to support the banking system by 700 billion U.S. dollars, following the Lehman Brothers crash – following the positive vote of the Senate, the House of Representatives voted in favor, with 263 votes more than needed for the grant amount.

After negotiations with Germany, Britain, Italy and Spain, the French Presidency has promoted the involvement of national institutions for “supporting the banking system.”<sup>1</sup>

The French President has managed to promote the view that “in these troubled times, returning to the State, is a solution, even on a temporary basis.”<sup>2</sup>

Gordon Brown, Prime Minister of Great Britain, has initiated an action to “support the banking system”, and Angela Merkel – after having expressed some reservations – agreed to accept, eventually, “involvement of national institutions in combating the effects of the crisis.”

However, after the G20 Summit in Washington, the involvement of national institutions has continued to support the banking system. An example – commented extensively in international banking circles – is the support of the U.S. Government of one of the most important banks: CITI GROUP.

Under the circumstances where CITI GROUP actions have declined by 60 percent, in the week of November 17-23, 2008, the government announced that the U.S. “would intervene to guarantee bad mortgage loans and certain other assets belonging CITI GROUP, with the amount of 306 billion dollars”.

The Government of the U.S.A. decided, however, an injection of 20 billion dollars cash from the U.S. Treasury, in addition to the 25 billion dollars, granted in the October “program to save financial system”, advanced by Henry Paulson, Secretary of State of the U.S. Government.

In exchange for the financial aid – the CITI GROUP has to keep away from a possible bankruptcy – the U.S. Government will receive preference shares for 27 billion dollars.

§ 6. Bankers - forced to restrict spending

Most analysts of the financial system have pointed out that one of the causes of the “current crisis” is the “waste”, consisting in bonuses of millions of dollars to bankers.

For example, Goldman Sachs, UBS, Lehman Brothers, Barclays and other banks – who are now in difficulty – have given substantial bonuses to their leadership, to those bankers who were considered to be “a business performance management”. Robert Diamond – Head of Commercial Division at Barclays – received in 2007, a bonus of 6.5 million pounds sterling in addition to basic annual salary of 250,000 pounds.

Substantial bonuses were also received by other members of bank management teams, like managers from Goldman Sachs, UBS, Deutsche Bank etc.

This year, more and more banks have decided to give up bonuses and limit the payment of basic salaries of bankers that are still quite substantial.

Waste disposal has been requested by Senators of the American to multinational managers who asked for substantial aid from the U.S. legislature. For example, the managers from “General Motors” have asked for a financial support of 60 billion dollars from the U.S. legislatures.

After “having shown” that this is appropriate financial support, a U.S. Senator asked them on what kind of the plane they came to Washington, and when they replied that they came on personal aircraft, the Senator advised them to return home and sell the planes and other liabilities acquired for personal enrichment, thus avoiding the bankruptcy of their company.

§ 7. European institutions – an increasingly important involvement in combating the global financial crisis

Following the negotiations initiated by the French Presidency, the Member States of the Union, and also the European Commission have examined the possible and necessary measures to combat the global financial crisis.

On November 26, 2008, the European Commission presented a “plan for economic re-launching”, comprising of two central elements:

a. tax incentives for short-term stimulation of the demand, jobs protection and regaining consumer confidence that they can afford to purchase the products they need,

b. The European Commission proposed – in the following period (years 2009-2011) – to put more emphasis on “smart investments” to determine economic growth.

The President of the European Commission, José Manuel Durão Barroso, highlighted the need to “adjust the national measures to those adopted at European level”. According to the European Commission priority-, at least at this stage – will be given to “punctual short term actions”, aimed at, for example, subsidies for the automotive industry.

The European Commission shares the opinion of some American industrialists who argue that one should act with more courage for “relocating the automobile industry to Eastern countries”.<sup>1</sup>

The European Commission has proposed, at the same time, that Member States should follow the example of Great Britain on reducing value added tax. European Commission supports the view of Prime Minister Gordon Brown that such a reduction would be likely “to support national economies”.

It is known that the minimum level of value added tax is 15 percent; however, 25 member states practice a percentage higher than the ceiling of 15 percent.

Only 2 Member States: Cyprus and Luxembourg have a value added tax of 15 percent. Gordon Brown has proposed a reduction of value added tax from 17.5 to 15 percent by the end of 2009.

The European Commission has proposed also to give a more sustained support to small and medium enterprises, which have proven to be largely exposed to the global financial crisis.

It is stressed that the European Investment Bank has engaged a “loan program of 30 billion Euro for small and medium enterprises.”

The European Commission decided, at the same time, the reallocation of funds targeted – giving priority – to the vulnerable areas in the Union.

Based on analysis, the European Commission found that appropriate measures are necessary to accelerate payments on projects for structural funds.

§ 8. Universal institutions – reforming concerns

The global financial crisis has led to concerns regarding the reform of global financial institutions as well.

The Summit in Washington has proposed, among other things, a Breton Woods II, according to which measures are agreed to “improve the international financial system architecture.”

U.S. President, George W. Bush, called for “modernizing the International Monetary Fund and International Bank for Reconstruction and Development - World Bank.”<sup>1</sup>

Political leaders of several countries consider that the international financial reform should include “supervisory methods” where all the institutions and markets, financial institutions, including offshore and rating agencies, should be attracted.

And on reforming the system of universal institutions, the European leaders – led by the French President, Nicolas Sarkozy – have advanced several proposals, including:

- a. the construction of a system of international finance where the European Union “has a more important role”
- b. adopt a “program of action to counteract the effects of the financial crisis”,
- c. ensuring accountability and transparency for all participants in the functioning of the global financial system.

More emerging powers, especially Brazil, Russian Federation, China and India insist to take an active part in the decision making of the development and promotion of the world financial system.

Meanwhile, several countries in the Islamic world formed the D8 group – Islamic Economic International, insisting that the decisions which it takes to be considered at the level of universal economic mechanisms.

Heads of state and government – meeting at the Winter Council in Brussels, December 11-12, 2008 – had to resolve major problems for the economic development of the European Union not only for the new year 2009, which was close, but also for the next 4-5 years at least. Urgent – and equally expensive measures – had to be agreed to limit the effects of global financial crisis<sup>1</sup>, and also measures to counteract the climate change.<sup>2</sup>

§ 9. Limiting effects of global financial crisis – a priority for the European Union

The leaders of the European Union reached full consensus on the adoption of effective measures to limit the effects of global financial crisis.<sup>3</sup>

The European Commission proposals<sup>4</sup> have received support, although both at the ECOFIN<sup>5</sup> meeting and during the debates prior to the European Summit in Brussels, certain reservations have been expressed.<sup>6</sup>

Before the Summit in Brussels, France and Britain have called for a “Plan as committed as possible to combat the global financial crisis”, but Germany has been more cautious, considering that it is the main contributor to the Community budget.<sup>7</sup>

§ 10. 1.5 percent of European gross domestic product – a contribution required to effectively combat the crisis

The European leaders reunited in Brussels, on 11th -12th of December 2008, discussed the European Commission proposal on “the economic re-launching plan of 200 billion Euro”<sup>8</sup>

Heads of State and Government meeting in Brussels, had to consider ways of promoting the “economic Plan”, involving 1.5 percent of European gross

To prepare the Winter Summit in Brussels, of 11th -12th of December 2008, Prime Minister Gordon Brown, President Nicolas Sarkozy and President of the European Commission José Manuel Durão Barroso, met on 8 December 2008 in London, in a MINISUMMIT, during which the three pronounced for effective and coherent action at the Summit of 11th -12th of December in Brussels<sup>1</sup>.

Even from the first day of the Summit in Brussels<sup>2</sup>, compromising solutions were found, giving expression to European Union leaders will to address the issue of combating the financial crisis as "a priority of all Member States"<sup>3</sup>.

§ 11. Overcoming differences and making an agreement on measures for counteracting climate change

After several meetings – at European<sup>4</sup> and worldwide<sup>5</sup> level – the EU has shown perseverance and determination to promote an agreement on measures to counteract climate change.

Legislative package designed to reduce carbon emissions by 20 percent over the next 12 years was voted unanimously by the representatives of the 27 European Union Member States<sup>6</sup>.

Stravros Dimas, European Commissioner for Environment, said – after the unanimous vote of the Member States: "If all the other countries follow the example of European Union Member States, then our planet is standing a chance."<sup>7</sup>

Therefore, national, European and universal institutions have major tasks in combating the global financial crisis. The European Union has proved effective <sup>1</sup>Angela Merkel was – as the daily „Bild” noticed – the great absentee of the MINISUMMIT in London. However, the German Chancellor has made her position known before the Summit in Brussels on December 11-12, 2008. Her Excellency has stated that she would not agree with an "Economic re-launching plan" that would jeopardize jobs in the energy consuming industries in Germany. "We cannot be indifferent while jobs in chemical, steel manufacturing industries are being created in the world where environmental legislation is less rigorous than here" (Merkel, Angela, Statement made on December 8, 2008 in the "Bild").

not only by the initiatives taken, but above all by the concrete measures taken to limit the effects of this crisis.

There is no doubt that – under the current circumstances – the financial crisis will be limited and even eliminated if the national<sup>1</sup>, European and universal institutions act effectively<sup>2</sup>.
